Naomi Watts and Octavia Spencer on their powerful new film, 'Luce'

The film hits theaters this weekend. PAT KING

People have a lot of reasons to be walking on eggshells these days. For some, it could be navigating conversations. Or in the case of safety in the wake of so many public shootings, people are right to be constantly suspicious and to hold any evidence of danger as an alarm that should be blared at its loudest volume. The new film "Luce," premiering this Friday, sets out to confront audiences with the issues of privacy, search and seizure, and privilege, all set in a place that may hit close to home for many American families: our school system.

The film, adapted from the play by J.C. Lee and directed by Julius Onah, follows the title character, Luce, played by Kelvin Harrison Jr., who was taken in by an upper-middle-class white family after growing up as a child soldier in war-torn Eritrea. Luce has grown up to be both an "A" student and an all-star athlete, but runs into trouble after he hands in an essay to his teacher Harriet Wilson, played by Octavia Spencer, that contains some troubling and potentially dangerous ideas. After Wilson alerts Luce's parents Amy and Peter, played by Naomi Watts and Tim Roth, they must decide whether or not to defend him or act on their suspicions.

For actors Octavia Spencer and Naomi Watts, the opportunity to delve into such a vibrant piece of storytelling that would allow the audience to carry on the conversation once the credits start to roll wasn't one to pass up. According to Watts, she initially signed on once she had discovered that Spencer was involved, but was blown away by the complexity of Lee's story.

"Octavia was already attached and that was a big draw card for me," recalls Watts, as I meet with both actors. "We had worked together before and I'm a big fan of her work as well. That made me read it right away and the minute I read it, I knew there was so much there. It made me think all day. I was walking around wanting to discuss it."

ALL PHOTOS SUNDANCE INSTITUTE | LARKIN SEIPLE

Spencer agrees, and agrees that the space that the film occupied in her mind after reading it was the main draw for her to sign on to the project.

"I had actually met with J.C. about another project and he asked me to read 'Luce.' Then, like Naomi said, once you read it, you can't get the characters and the story out of your mind," says Spencer. "I kept wanting to relitigate it in my mind and take it from different perspectives. Then I thought, okay, I'm thinking about this way too much. I obviously want to do it. Even though I get nervous about Harriet in a lot of ways, I really enjoyed everything about it."

The film plays the audience's ideals themselves, letting them hear from all sides of the argument regarding the place of privilege where Luce is coming from and the hopes and dreams that good-hearted people in his orbit wish to push upon him and protect. To Watts, that kind of active participation is what makes the film such a poignant and important work.

"I think it's very satisfying as an audience member to sit there and watch something and then realize. 'Oh, I'm involved in this story, too!'" explains Watts. "It doesn't just take place in the cinema. It's going to live in your mind and there's more for you to examine. Giving that much power to the audience and [having] that much faith in them, I think is incredibly satisfying. Yes, all of these characters are well-intentioned. They're not evil people, but they get caught up in their myopic viewpoints and [in] trying to control things. [They] create identities for the vulnerable — that being Luce. That's when things go a little wobbly because he starts pushing back and says, 'I want to be in charge of my own identity.'"

The film practically hums with intensity throughout its duration, and will be one of the most talked-about films of the year as well as surefire awards contender. The arguments presented in Lee's hauntingly timely narrative never lend themselves to solutions that are easy. All of the characters mean well, but their good intentions deserve asterisks next to them.

"All of those asterisks that you mentioned are really the ambiguities of life," explains Spencer. "The only people we know how the story ends [for them] are the people who are no longer with us. Every day that you live, your story changes. The truth and perception changes. That's what this movie is forcing the audience to do. You become active participants in this film. It's not a passive viewing. ... I love that there are loose ends, because nothing in life is tied up with a bow."

Everything you need to know about the 2019 Boston Seafood Festival

Enjoy a summer afternoon on the Boston Fish Pier while feasting on bites from some of the city's best chefs and restaurants at the Boston Seafood Festival. Back for its eighth year, the foodie festivities are set to return this weekend with another awesome day of demos, music and plenty of amazing food. Here's what you need to know about this year's event.

ISTOCK

What is the Boston Seafood Festival?
Presented by the Boston Fisheries Foundation and co-founded by Yankee Lobster Co. owner Joe Zanti, the Boston Seafood Festival celebrates New England seafood cuisine and shines a light on how the fishing industry plays a vital role in this region. Bringing together chefs, entertainers, vendors and, of course, hungry fans, the fest features tastings, demos, educational activities and all kinds of fun for the whole family — not to mention amazing views of Boston Harbor.

What can fans expect at this year's fest?
This year's Boston Seafood Festival will feature tasty bites from a number of top chefs and vendors, including The Daily Catch, Shuck Food Truck, Matunuk Oyster, Roses Seafood, Yankee Lobster Co. and more. Snag a ticket to the lobster bake for a delicious meal of lobster, mussels, clam chowder, oysterettes, corn, cornbread and coleslaw. Wash it all down with brews from the Harpoon Beer Garden.

The festivities will also include live music, plus demos with several local culinary stars like Atlantic Fish Company Executive Chef Dan Billo, PABU Executive Chef Ben Steigers and more. The event will have a few competitions as well, including a Battle of the Shuckers and a fish-cutting contest. Children's activities and educational events will be on hand as well, so make sure to bring the whole family. Kids under 5 can even attend for free, while children ages 6 to 12 can stop by for just $5.

The 'next step' of motherhood

Patricia Arquette gives Metro the scoop on her enlightening new comedy, "Otherhood."

MOLLY GIVEN

Netflix's latest star-studded comedy "Otherhood," starring Patricia Arquette, Felicity Huffman and Angela Bassett, focuses on the complicated relationships mothers can have with their adult sons — or lack thereof. But that's not all the heartwarming flick explores. It also showcases the "next step" of motherhood — essentially, what happens after your kids no longer need you to pack their lunch, give them rides to school or fix their problems. What the women in the film discover is that although their kids no longer need their help, they may need some help on their own.

Arquette sat down with Metro to discuss the film, dive into why this story is so relatable to everyone, and discuss why sometimes we take whom we love the most for granted.

"Otherhood" follows the deep friendship between hard-working mothers Gillian (Arquette), Carol (Bassett) and Helen (Huffman). After blatant snubs on Mother's Day from their sons, the women decide to embark on a road trip and a maternal ambush to check in on how their sons are doing — and maybe find out a little dirt on their lives as well.

Being a mother herself, Arquette understood the innate desire Gillian had to simply just see her son. "I think she's worried about her son. It's not just about her son ignoring her on Mother's Day or that she's upset that he didn't call her," says Arquette. "It's her maternal instinct driving her. She just wants to know, are you okay? Are you alive? Are you eating? Are you with that girl I don't like?"

Patricia Arquette in "Otherhood."

Although the film is lighthearted, hilarious and a lot of fun (cue the drunken antics three middle-aged women can get into in the Big Apple), it also has underlying messages that ring true for anyone. "Angela and I were talking about how relatable this movie is to different people at different times. I think all of these characters are relatable to a point. We all have been somebody's child or we are someone's mother or our wife is someone's mother," says Arquette.

At the surface, the women blame their strained relationships on a lot: their sons' significant others, jobs, bad habits, or even themselves and their own mothering styles. The soul-searching leads the three mothers to overcompensate with their sons, whether it's setting them up on hasty blind dates or even breaking into their "prison-like" apartment through a window.

What Arquette thinks Gillian needed to realize, though, is that focusing too much on the lives of others simply isn't fulfilling to your own — which can be a hard pill to swallow. "I think she learned that her meddling can actually create a lot of problems, and that she doesn't always know best and that she should trust her son and his instincts," says Arquette. "I think she learned that her marriage also isn't as perfect as she thought and those are both difficult things for her to come to terms with. Also, that she needs to be up higher on her own priority list."

"Otherhood" as a comedy is a hilarious feat highlighted by the incredible cast of talent, directing chops from Cindy Chupack and a highly amusing story line. But even though the film at the surface may seem tied up in a neat bow, it certainly tests a lot: the fragile relationship adult children and their parents can have, the tumultuous costs decisions can have on a marriage, and even the boundaries of friendship.

"It's really about realizing we can't take our parents for granted, even if we are doing it subconsciously. But also you learn what are healthy boundaries for people to have. We're not the same selves we were when we were kids, so let's redefine who we are as grown-ups in our own right. What is the joy in our lives? I think it's also a reminder not to take our marriages for granted. So it's not just about one aspect, there's a lot of different things."

"Otherhood" drops on Netflix Aug. 2.

Gov. Baker signs $43.3 billion budget, approves all spending

The governor explained his lack of veto on "this budget's balanced."

Republican Gov. Charlie Baker on Wednesday assigned a $43.3 billion bottom line to the brand new state budget, opting against cutting any spending approved by the Democrat-controlled Legislature.

"The budget's in pretty good shape financially," said Baker, whose vetoes in the past have been quickly overturned.

The budget is built around a projected $30.099 billion in state tax revenue, or 1.4 percent growth over fiscal 2019 collections, according to the Executive Office of Administration and Finance.

Gov. Charlie Baker GETTY IMAGES

The spending bill, which lawmakers sent Baker on July 22, raises Chapter 70 school aid 5.5 percent to $5.2 billion and assumes an income-tax rate reduction to from 5.05 percent to 5 percent on Jan. 1, 2020. Voters in 2000 approved a ballot question calling for a 5 percent income tax rate.

The budget also features a planned $476 million increase to the state's stabilization fund, which is on track to reach a $3.3 billion balance by the end of fiscal 2020.

> "The budget's in pretty good shape financially."
> Gov. Charlie Baker

After signing the budget in his office, Baker, in response to questions, said he did not veto any spending, because "this budget's balanced." Governors often find a significant amount of spending to veto; Baker said he will pay a lot of attention to revenues and spending for the remainder of the year.

Baker said he signed off on a drug pricing control piece that differed from the one he originally proposed and that he returned offshore wind energy procurement language with an amendment proposing "a much simpler version" of a cap lift.

The governor attached urgency to budget amendments. He said his wind amendment and another amendment regarding meals and alcohol taxes during the upcoming August sales tax holiday are "really time sensitive" and he hopes lawmakers deal with them before breaking for their summer recess, as they are expected to do after Wednesday's formal sessions. Woodstock 50 music festival called off due to 'unforeseen setbacks'

The troubled Woodstock 50 anniversary music festival planned for August was officially canceled on Wednesday, with organizers blaming a series of "unforeseen setbacks."

The three-day festival, meant to mark the 50th anniversary of the famed 1969 celebration of peace and music, was planned for Aug. 16-18.

"Woodstock 50 today announced that the three-day festival to celebrate its 50th anniversary has been canceled," the organizers said in a statement.

"We are saddened that a series of unforeseen setbacks has made it impossible to put on the festival we imagined with the great lineup we had booked and the social engagement we were anticipating," said Michael Lang, one of the original producers of the 1969 event.

The cancellation was widely expected after a troubled five months in which organizers were turned down at two proposed sites in upstate New York, lost funding and headliners including rapper Jay-Z and pop star Miley Cyrus pulled out.

Tickets never went on sale for the festival.

Organizers last week made a last ditch attempt to put on a free, scaled down event at an amphitheater in Maryland, but several of the 80 or so acts began pulling out despite having already been paid.

Lang said in his statement that the smaller event in Maryland would have been aimed at raising funds for nonprofits fighting climate change and organizations encouraging Americans to vote in the 2020 U.S. general elections. REUTERS

Boston fugitive facing charges after bugging teens' rooms

A Boston man has been arrested for allegedly installing hidden cameras in a Maine home to apparently spy on two Pennsylvania teens.

NBC reported that Samuel P. Mickey, 26, will be charged with violation of privacy and being a fugitive from justice. His cash bail is set at $2,500; he will be in court at a later date. Mickey was arrested on July 25 by the Boston Police Department, seacoastonline.com reported.

Police told outlets that on July 18, a Pennsylvania family was on vacation at a home in Eliot, Maine, when the teens noticed "phone-style chargers" around the home they were staying in. One of the teens discovered there was a memory card within the devices, which turned out to be hidden cameras.

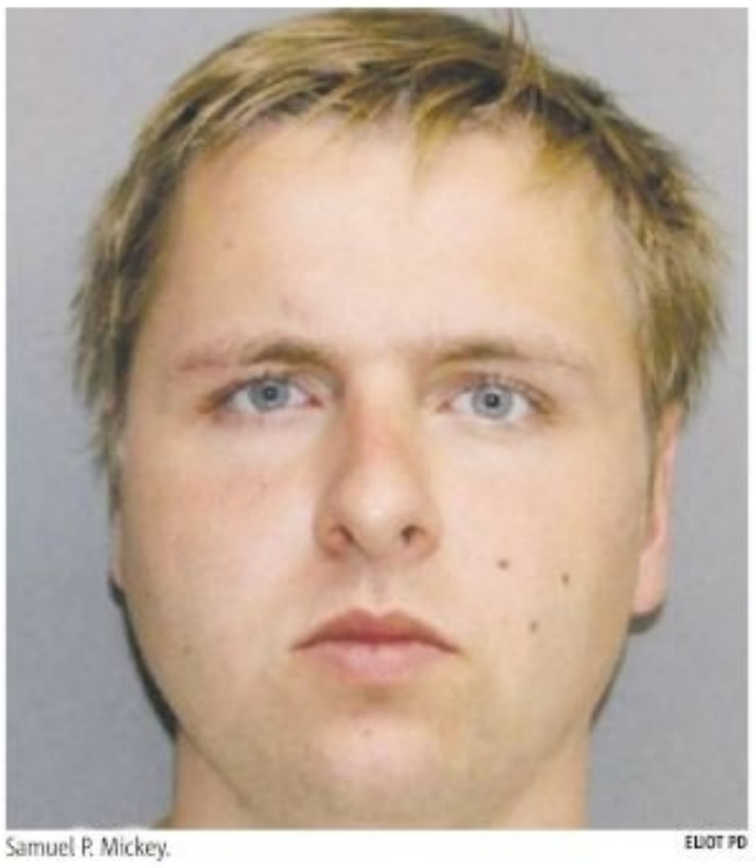
It was reported that the home was owned by Mickey's parents. Mickey was also visiting the home at the time the family was staying there.

The cameras were allegedly located in the bathrooms and bedrooms of the house. The teens removed all cards and provided them to the police.

NBC reported that the Eliot Police Department procured a search warrant to review what was on the memory cards, which revealed unknown people in the bathroom and bedroom.

It was reported that the cameras were angled specifically so viewers of the tapes could watch people on the toilet, in the shower and even in the bedrooms.

Eliot Police Chief Elliott Moya said in a statement: "Most would be appalled at these actions as they are a tremendous breach of privacy. Thankfully, the individual that found the cameras was abundantly suspicious and examined further to learn it was more than just a phone charger."



Samuel P. Mickey. ELIOT PD

Boston police also got a search warrant for Mickey's residence and car.

This investigation was ongoing as of July 31. If you or anyone you know has any information, please call Sgt. Ronald Lund at 207-439-1179.

Smart city

Smart city technology is derived from the digital age of connectivity.

The creation of smart energy grids, the use of IoT (Internet of Things) censors for traffic circulation and trash collection, and the ability to regulate lights all contribute to urban energy efficiency. However, there is more to becoming a smart city than this. With the application of biomimicry and biophilic principles, the city can become a vibrant, inviting platform where technology, nature, creativity and people coexist. Scientist and author Janine Benyus defines biomimicry as a "new science that studies nature's models and then imitates or takes inspiration from these designs and processes to solve human problems." Harvard professor E. O. Wilson, in his book "Biophilia" (1986), underlined our human need for nature and the importance of these connections.

The 12th Annual Boston GreenFest & TechExpo invites attendees to imagine our smart city, one that has a Smartflower™ garden of solar flowers mimicking blooming flowers as they automatically open their circular array of solar panels and track the sun throughout the day for maximum exposure alongside real gardens, at ground level, on vertical walls and on rooftops. Our Smart Boston will have plazas that harvest rainwater with beautiful sculptures such as RainKeep™; use Aquagen's photobioreactor and algae air scrubbers to clean our air and water, establishing algae biotech as a valuable resource; and take advantage of Bishop Land Design's natural landscaping models that provide protection against shifting weather patterns. A smart city uses smart transportation and smart building design. In the Smart City Pavilion, there will be examples of the jPods™ solar personal rapid transit, Clearvue PV™ windows that serve as solar panels, Novacab's thermodynamic energy storage systems, ReCover Green Roof's beautiful designs, Ecoquipment's zero-emissions construction equipment and Nissan's electric vehicle, the Leaf®.

"Life solves its problems with well-adapted designs, life-friendly chemistry and smart material and energy use."

Sri Lanka to offer free visas on arrival to boost tourism

Sri Lanka will offer free tourism visas on arrival to citizens of almost 50 countries, a government document showed on Tuesday, as it tries to woo back visitors after militant attacks on Easter Sunday.

Islamist militants on April 21 bombed churches and luxury hotels in Sri Lanka, killing more than 250 people, including 42 foreign nationals.

Several countries then issued travel advisories, undermining the crucial tourism industry. Foreign visitor arrivals in May fell 70.8 percent, the lowest since the end of Sri Lanka's civil war a decade ago.

A government document seen by Reuters showed the cabinet had agreed to scrap tourist visas, which typically cost $20 to $40 and are applied for online or at Sri Lankan embassies and consulates. Visa-free entry will be available to 48 nations, including China, India and the United Kingdom

"The offer will remain for six months and the government will assess the loss of revenue from visas after six months," an official at the Tourism Development Ministry told Reuters.

Tourism Development Minister John Amaratunga confirmed the measure to Reuters. He added that he expects the move to boost arrivals but declined to provide details. The ministry said it did not have an estimate of its earnings from visa payments.

Tourism was Sri Lanka's third-largest and fastest-growing source of foreign currency last year, after private remittances and textile and garment exports, accounting for almost $4.4 billion or 4.9 percent of gross domestic product in 2018.

Tourist traffic for the first half of the year was down by 13.4 percent.

The government will officially announce the offer at 4:30 a.m. GMT on Wednesday, the Tourism Development Ministry official added.

Nationals from Thailand, European Union nations, the United States, Australia, South Korea, Canada, Singapore, New Zealand, Malaysia, Switzerland, Cambodia, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Iceland and Russia are among the 48 nations included in the measure. SHIHAR ANEEZ AND RANGA SIRILAL

Whitney breakdown

The Whitney Stakes attracted eight runners, five of which are career millionaires. An automatic bid to this year's Breeders' Cup Classic is on the line. Here is a look at four horses that MetroBet predicts will come up big on Saturday afternoon.

No. 4 THUNDER SNOW is the only two-time winner of the Dubai World Cup, the richest race in the world, but has never won in North America (4-0-1-2). That could change on Saturday at Saratoga. THUNDER SNOW was last seen rallying for third in the Metropolitan Handicap on the Belmont Stakes day undercard. Most handicappers surmised that the one-mile distance would be too short for him, and they were proven right. Trainer Saeed bin Suroor wisely stretches the son of Helmet back out to 1 1/8-miles in the Whitney Stakes. THUNDER SNOW has been working well over this course and will have the services of regular rider Christophe Soumillon. Expect him to sit just off the pace before making his move at the quarter pole.

No. 6 MCKINZIE has hit the exacta in 10 of his 11 career starts but has burned a lot of win money in four starts this year, posting a 4-1-3-0 record. He was a runaway victor in Churchill's Alysheba Stakes on Kentucky Derby weekend but lost a battle with Gift Box in the Santa Anita Handicap and Battle of Midway in the San Pasqual Stakes earlier in 2019. Last time out in the Met Mile, MCKINZIE incurred some traffic trouble and had to settle for second behind Mitole. Despite all the accolades in his Hall-of-Fame career, trainer Bob Baffert has never won the Whitney. Jockey Mike Smith's one and only Whitney win came in 1993 with Brunswick. MCKINZIE is a must-use in multi-race wagers but will likely offer little value in this heat.

No. 8 PRESERVATIONIST is a relatively new face to the handicap division despite being six years old. He's raced only eight times in his career due to various minor injuries. Trainer Jimmy Jerkens appears to have the son Arch in peak form based on his convincing score in Belmont's Suburban Stakes on July 6 over multiple Grade I winner Catholic Boy, which was his third win in as many starts in 2019. PRESERVATIONIST may try to take them all the way in the Whitney under Junior Alvarado.

No. 5 VINO ROSSO will be rolling late under John Velazquez in the Whitney. The Todd Pletcher trainee was last seen acing the Gold Cup at Santa Anita over Pacific Classic-bound Gift Box. Living up to his name, VINO ROSSO has gotten better with age. He already has a win over this course, as he took last year's Jim Dandy Stakes at age three. Pletcher and Velazquez have teamed up for three prior Whitney scores with Left Bank (2002), Lawyer Ron (2007) and Cross Traffic (2013). However, VINO ROSSO is probably best used underneath based on speed figures.

The play: $8 exacta Thunder Snow/McKinzie, Preservationist, $4 exacta Thunder Snow/Vino Rosso ($20) at NYRABets.com/MetroBet

MINDSET BY RED SOX AT MLB TRADE DEADLINE CONFUSING

OPINION

DANNY PICARD

Listen to "The Danny Picard Show" at dannypicard.com. Follow him on Twitter @dannypicard

Red Sox executive Dave Dombrowski, right, did not pull the trigger on any trades on deadline day. GETTY IMAGES

The Boston Red Sox are standing pat.

With Major League Baseball's 4 p.m. trade deadline coming and going on Wednesday, the defending World Series champions decided to finish the 2019 season with what they have. And what they have is a team that needs more pitching.

They must now rely on their current roster to get them back into the postseason, as this is the first year that the MLB is going with only one trade deadline. In years past, July 31 represented the "non-waiver" trade deadline: After July 31, teams were still allowed to make acquisitions through the month of August, they just had to be via a waiver claim.

The league got rid of the waiver deadline in the hopes that there would be more action on July 31. And even when the clock struck 4 p.m. ET on Wednesday, it looked as if that strategy hadn't worked ... until it was reported minutes later that the Houston Astros had acquired starters Zack Greinke and Aaron Sanchez in trades with the Arizona Diamondbacks and Toronto Blue Jays.

That's a whole lot more than the Red Sox acquired, which is nothing. Boston's President of Baseball Operations Dave Dombrowski didn't pull the trigger on a single deal Wednesday, and as a result, he will be heavily criticized for it.

As he should be.

There had been reports of talks between the Red Sox and New York Mets for starter Zack Wheeler or closer Edwin Diaz, neither of whom was moved at the deadline. But those same reports also had the Mets asking for a package that included either Andrew Benintendi or Jackie Bradley Jr.

In a post-deadline press conference on Wednesday, Dombrowski said it was ultimately the Red Sox's decision to stand pat, and that they were the team to turn down trades that they could've made if they really wanted.

I believe that, especially if the Mets were asking for Benintendi or Bradley in a trade that doesn't involve Noah Syndergaard.

But just because the Red Sox are now pounding their chest in the aftermath of no trade-deadline deals, that doesn't mean they were right to do absolutely nothing whatsoever.

Okay, so don't give up anyone from your Major League roster. Fine. But you mean to tell me the defending World Series champions couldn't have moved a minor-leaguer or two in order to add an arm to the bullpen? Even if it was an average arm at best, it would've been better than doing nothing at all.

Entering Wednesday night's game against the Tampa Bay Rays, the Red Sox were just two games out of the second Wild Card spot. There are two months left in the regular season. You're the defending champs. And you decide to just sit on your hands? I don't understand that mindset.

The assumption is that the Red Sox will look to Nathan Eovaldi's added presence in the bullpen as their "deadline acquisition," as Eovaldi just returned from elbow surgery a week and a half ago. But since returning, Eovaldi has allowed five earned runs in four appearances and 3.2 innings — so even he doesn't look great right now.

That said, the concern shouldn't be with Eovaldi. It should be with the other relievers whose job it'll be to get to Eovaldi, if the plan is for Eovaldi to be the Red Sox closer down the stretch.

Dombrowski had an opportunity to add at least one arm to his middle relief on Wednesday. He failed to do so.

And that's not the mentality of a defending champion anyone in Boston wants to see.

Pats, Chiefs not the only AFC elites

VSiN

Pro football is back.

The NFL Hall of Fame game featuring the Atlanta Falcons and Denver Broncos kicks off Thursday night at 8 p.m. on NBC. That makes this the ideal time for VSiN to set the stage for the 2019 pro football season with an early look at estimated "market" Power Ratings.

VSiN's Jonathan Von Tobel (co-host of "The Edge" weekdays from 3-6 p.m. on our livestream or on Sirius Channel 204) and I put our heads to together weekly each season to deduce how the composite sum of market influences has rated all 32 NFL teams on a neutral field scale.

We do this using point spreads, adjusting a standard three points for home field advantage. If the home team in a regular season game is favored by a field goal, then we consider those teams dead even.

We don't use preseason point spreads because starters don't see much action in August. Numbers for Week One of the Regular season have been on the board for weeks already. Settled lines suggest the following for the AFC…

*New England 86, Kansas City 86, LA Chargers 83, Cleveland 83, Indianapolis 83, Pittsburgh 83, Houston 82, Baltimore 82, Tennessee 81, Jacksonville 79, Denver 77, Cincinnati 76, NY Jets 76, Oakland 76, Buffalo 75, Miami 75.

New England is currently a 6-point home favorite over Pittsburgh in its season opener. That means the Patriots had to go three rungs above the Steelers on our scale. Jonathan and I went with 86 and 83, keeping the Patriots in line with other league elites.

Kansas City is a 4-point road favorite at Jacksonville. That means a 7-point differential on our scale. That's why KC sits at 86, the Jaguars at 79.

You get the gist. Though the Chiefs and Patriots are again projected to meet in the conference finals come January, there's a loaded field of contenders about a field goal behind them. Any could improve enough through the season to surge into the 84-85 range. And, the Chiefs and Patriots are just a key injury away from falling back to the pack.

Here's the NFC…

*LA Rams 86, New Orleans 86, Philadelphia 83, Chicago 83, Seattle 82, Dallas 82, Minnesota 82, Green Bay 82, Atlanta 81, Carolina 80, San Francisco 80, Tampa Bay 77, Washington 77, NY Giants 77, Detroit 77, Arizona 72.

VSiN will update these throughout the season. And, if preseason injuries knock stars out of the September mix, we'll update even sooner.

Sharps (professional bettors) have shown interest in Thursday's Broncos/Falcons exhibition opener. An early line of pick-em has been driven hard all the way to Denver -3. The public doesn't typically bet preseason action prior to game day. So, we have very strong evidence that sharps like Denver at anything below a field goal.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

CITY of BOSTON

NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT
26 COURT STREET
BOSTON, MA 02108
TEL: 617-635-0603

MA DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING & COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT
100 CAMBRIDGE STREET
BOSTON, MA 02114

These notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities to be undertaken by the City of Boston's Department of Neighborhood Development and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

On or about August 17, 2019, the City of Boston, acting through its Department of Neighborhood Development (DND), and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, acting through the Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD), will individually submit requests to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the release of Federal funds through the HOME Investment Partnerships Program pursuant to the authority of Title II of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act, as amended (t42 U.S.C. 12701 et seq.), and for the release of Housing Choice Vouchers Program (HCVP) funds under Section 8 of the Housing Act of 1937, as amended for the following project:

INDIGO BLOCK:

The Indigo Block project involves the construction of a multi-use site at 65-73 East Cottage Street in the Upham's Corner (Dorchester) neighborhood of Boston. The site will contain 80 units of affordable rental housing, 9 market rate condominiums, and 20,000 SF of ground floor retail space in a 6 story, 86,000 SF structure. The development will also include a new connection to the Upham's Comer MBTA Commuter Rail Stop (Fairmont Line) and re-paving of Hillsboro Street. The total project cost is approximately $ 41,432,188, including up to $1,000,000 in federal HOME funds from the City of Boston. The developer anticipates seeking $825,000 in HOME funds and Project Based Vouchers from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT:

The City of Boston has determined for itself and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts concurs that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) is not required. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Record (ERR) on file at the DND Compliance Unit, 26 Court Street, 11th Floor, Boston, MA, or at DHCD, 100 Cambridge St, Suite 300, Boston, MA, 02114, and may be examined or copied weekdays 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., excluding legal holidays.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the ERR to the DND Compliance Unit, 26 Court St, Boston, MA 02108, or to DHCD, 100 Cambridge St, Suite 300, Boston, MA 02114. All comments received by August 16, 2019 will be considered by the City of Boston and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. Comments should specify which notice they are addressing.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The City of Boston certifies to HUD that Martin J. Walsh, in his official capacity as Mayor, and DHCD certifies Catherine Racer, in her official capacity as Associate Director of Housing Development, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities, and allows the City of Boston and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to use Program Funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Boston's and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' certification for a period of fifteen days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later), only if they are on one of the following bases: (a) The certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of either the City of Boston or the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; (b) the City of Boston or the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has omitted a step or failed to make a decision of finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to the Environmental Officer, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Thomas P. O'Neill Federal Building, 10 Causeway Street, Boston, MA 02222-1092. Potential objectors should contact HUD to verify the actual last day of the objection period.
